2003	16%

Results

The results for each question are reported below. In addition to the percentage of respondents selecting each category, historical means for your institution are reported. Means range from 5.0 (indicating strong agreement with the question statement) to 1.0 (indicating strong disagreement with the question statement). It is important to examine both the mean and the distribution of responses because a bi-modal response (where faculty are polarized on an issue) may yield a mean of 3, which could downplay an important issue which needs to be addressed. Following the responses to the 13 questions asked system-wide, the responses to locally developed questions (if any) are presented.

Administration and interpretation of the survey

Questionnaires are provided electronically by email to all members of the academic staff associations at participating institutions in November. Results are tabulated through the web-based Survey Monkey. The survey is based on climate surveys used by organizations involved in total quality management programs. The literature on climate surveys suggests a strong relationship between perceived climate and absenteeism, turnover, and level of union activity (e.g., grievances). This survey is meant to provide a broad overview of organizational climate and highlight areas of concern for further study by administrators and faculty members.

While the survey is not based on a random sample, the rates of return provide support for the validity of the results. Further, a number of institutions have commissioned external surveys that broadly replicate the results of the ACIFA survey. These data represent perceptions and must be interpreted carefully. Of specific concern is the use of means (averages) in results. The data collected does not contain the metric properties necessary to calculate means and standard deviations. Despite this, means are an important component in showing smaller changes in perception over time and are included.
